Each of the participants on these webinars is committed to full compliance with antitrust laws. It is important for our institutions to avoid even the appearance of improper coordination of competitive activity. Antitrust law prohibits agreements, including tacit understandings, among competitors to fix the prices they charge or the prices they pay, to allocate customers or territories, or otherwise to restrict the terms of competition between them. Any such agreement, understanding or joint action is likely to be illegal per se and potentially subject to criminal and civil penalties. The exchange of competitively sensitive information among competitors might also be used as evidence to infer such a prohibited agreement. If you believe anyone on a call is beginning to discuss subject matter that could raise antitrust issues, it is your responsibility to alert the speaker and meeting leader of your concerns.
